BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Dublin, March 9.—The excitement is growing in Dublin in connection with the mutiny in the ranks of the nationalist army as disclosed in the official communication issued Saturday night saying that orders for the arrest of Major General Liam Tobin and Colonel Charles Dalton have been issued.

What is supposed to have been an indirect effort of the mutiny was experienced today at a political meeting held here in connection with the election for a dail seat to be held next Tuesday. President Cosgrave and other members of the government attended. It was expected Mr. Cosgrave would refer to the mutiny, but he refrained from doing so.

Disorder Marks Meeting.
About ten thousand persons attending the meeting, which was characterized throughout by extreme disorder.
The speakers were frequently interrupted and the speeches were almost unintelligible amid the din of cheering and counter-cheering. A nearby shop was set on fire which nearly caused a serious panic. Attempts to eject the disturbers only aggravated matters.
There were frequent shouts of "up De Valera" and girls with tin cans moving through the crowd collecting funds
for the republicans added to the din.
Precautions have been taken for any eventuality. The guards have been doubled at all the Dublin barracks.
Leaves of absence have been cancelled and there is unusual general activity.

Take to Hills.
In addition to the trouble at Tem-plemore, where the commandant and other officers vacated the barracks
and retired to the hills with machine guns, rifles and ammunition, there are reports of difficulties with the demobilized at Gormanstown, Clare
Morris and other places.
Minister of Defense Mulcahy last night issued the following orders to the army:

"Two army officers have attempted to involve the army in a challenge to the authority of the government.
This is an outrageous departure from the spirit of the army which will not be tolerated by the officers and men of the army who cherish its honor.

"They will stand over their posts and do their duty today, in this new threat of danger, in the same watchful and determined spirit that always has been the spirit of the army."

Tobin Explains Motive.

Major General Tobin, who has elected arrest, managed to see representatives of the press on Saturday and acted on behalf of old comrades
in the Anglo-Irish war. He confessed the mutiny was a consequence of the compulsory demobilization of more than 900 officers last week. Tobin himself was among those demobilized.
He complained that too many officers who participated in the Anglo-Irish struggle were included in the list.

General Tobin was one of the lieutenants of the late Michael Collins.

A Manual for Debaters

Here's just the thing all you school boys and girls, teachers, and others who have occasion to prepare or take part in a debate, have been looking for. Our Washington Bureau has prepared for you a Debater's Manual which covers the subject completely. It contains the rules for preparing a debate, how to organize, state the proposition, arrange the arguments, marshal the evidence, avoid fallacies, refute your opponent's position, prepare your brief, use of persuasion, team work on a debate, subjects for debates, and a complete list of references telling how and where to secure material. If you want this bulletin, fill out the coupon below and mail as directed:

New York, March 9.—Three women were killed outright, two men probably were fatally injured and two others, a man and a woman, were less seriously injured today when the automobile in which they were returning from a wedding celebration
swerved from the road and crashed into a telegraph pole in the Bronx.
Joseph Curry, owner of the car,
who suffered a fracture of the skull,
was held at the hospital on a technical charge of homicide.

DENBY GOES OUT OF CABINET JOB

Resignation as Secretary of Navy Effective Today.
Will Resume Commission in Marines.

Washington, March 9.—Edwin Denby will retire tomorrow as secretary of the navy and so far as could be learned tonight his successor has not been selected by President Coolidge.

The president, however, has been giving much thought the past few days to filling the first cabinet vacancy of his administration, and indications were given today that he had narrowed down considerably the field of those under consideration and that a decision may be announced
any time.

The elimination of a large proportion of those mentioned has left among those known to be still on the list Governor Dixon of Montana, James E.
Davidson, republican national commissioner from Michigan, and former Representative Foss, of Illinois.

To Get Marine Commission.
Secretary Denby will spend tomorrow winding up pending business at the navy department and receiving the farewell calls of those who have served under him for three years. He will be sworn in again as a major in the marine corps and receive the commission he surrendered when he became secretary of the navy.

Plans for the future have not been decided upon by Mr. Denby. He will return to his home in Detroit within a few days and probably then will make a statement relative to reports that he may become a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator.

When Mr. Denby lays down his duties tomorrow, Theodore Roosevelt,
the assistant secretary, will become acting secretary to serve until a new department head is installed.

Secretary Denby said farewell to two hundred navy and marine officers at a dinner given in his honor
last night.

"I am trying to die with my face
toward the enemy," he said. "I am trying to be brave and go through with this. I am leaving in body but my spirit will always be with the navy."
Mr. Denby said he had been through three wars—the war with Spain, the World war and the war revolving about the oil industry.

"This third war," he said, "has been more bitter than any."

FILLING STATION
MANAGER DEFIES
TWO HOLD-UP MEN

Ignoring an automatic, thrust in his side by a husky negro bandit, Charles Gray, Jr., 21, manager of the Gulf Refining company's filling station at Moreland and Enclid avenues, frustrated an attempted hold-up late Sunday night.

According to Gray's story to Call Officers Goode and Ballard, two negroes entered the office of the station about 11 o'clock and commanded him to surrender the contents of cash register and safe.

Gray says he stood in front of the safe and refused to step aside. The negro then commanded him to give up his watch and when he failed to do so, snatched it out of his pocket.
Gray grappled with the negro who had taken the watch, he says, and recovered his property. The intruders, apparently disgusted with their failure to frighten the young manager, snatched his overcoat from a desk and fled out Moreland avenue.

Detailed descriptions were furnished the officers.

Castlegate, Utah, March 9.—
Thirty charred and mangled bodies have been brought up out of the mine of the Utah Fuel company. One hundred and forty-two men are still entombed within, as a result of the triple explosion Saturday, and it is not believed that any of them are alive.

The condition of the bodies recovered was such as to make identification impossible.
Choked by poisonous gas and menaced by fire, rescue parties Sunday afternoon were working slowly toward the miners' lower level, where they expected to find the rest of the bodies. A mine rescue car is speeding from Los Angeles to aid in the work, according to reports here.

Hope of Life Gone.
Hope that some of the entombed
miners might still live was extinguished in the morning, when the first thirteen bodies were found charred beyond recognition. This showed that the fire caused by the explosion was still raging within the man-made catacombs of the mine.

Pitiful scenes, the kind that seldom
are seen outside the mining districts,
were enacted by the grief-stricken relatives of the victims when the first bodies were brought to the surface
under canvas, bringing with them the realization that practically the last vestige of hope for the survival of their loved ones was gone.

Bodies were stretched along the ropes where the entrance of the mine is located, but frenzied men and women broke through them when the bodies were brought up shortly before 10 o'clock. Many were overcome by the heavy clouds of gas
which rolled out of the mine.

Point of Blast in Four Miles.
Half of the rescue workers had to be detailed at once on guard duty to prevent the hysterical wives and mothers from dashing into the gas-filled tomb, and calls were sent for more volunteers to aid in the rescue work.

Rescue cars were on the way from every available point Sunday, and special trains bringing reinforcements to the rescuers were being given the priority.

BONUS MEASURE
READY THIS WEEK

Chairman Green To Ask
Special Rule To Give It Right of Way in House.

Washington, March 9.—Plans to bring the soldier bonus bill immediately before the house upon its report
this week by the ways and means committee were announced today by Chairman Green, who said he would ask for a special rule to give the measure right of way.

The finishing touches on the bill,
providing for paid-up life insurance policies with an option of $50 in cash for those veterans not entitled to more than that amount, will be made by a sub-committee which will start work tomorrow. Mr. Green said he believed the bill could be whipped into shape and reported by Wednesday.

Chairman Green, Representatives
Hawley, Oregon, and Bacharach, New Jersey, republicans, and Garner, Texas, and Oldfield, Arkansas, democrats,
make up the sub-committee.

Mr. Green today expressed regret that the committee had voted down
the farm and home aid option which was in the measure passed last session, declaring he desired "to adhere to the bill accepted by the American Legion as far as possible."

WOMAN TO LEAVE
POLITICAL PLACE
WITHOUT REGRETS

Berlin, March 9.—Fran Katharina
von Scheimb who often is called the Lady Astor of the German reichstag, has announced that she will not be a candidate for reelection. She says she is "sick" of party politics and prefers to work outside the reichstag,
rather than as one of its members.

She intimates in a letter announcing her retirement from her post as deputy of the German people's party that it may be necessary to form a special woman's party to assist in preserving German unity. She declares she desires to abandon the point of view of the suffragette and is eager to be free to tell women how they best may influence the government's policy.
"I am willing to be led by great men," says Frau von Scheimb, "and I shall continue in that frame of mind."

BRYAN HAS HOPES
IN ALABAMA RACE

Tuesday Preferential Race
Is Vital to Fortunes of Underwood at New York Convention.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, March 9.—Much democratic history will be shaped on Tuesday when Senator Oscar Underwood tries his wings in the Alabama primary.

Underwood is fighting hard to win
the endorsement of his home state in order to give impetus to his candidacy as the series of primaries begins.
Likewise, his political enemies are conducting a bitter fight, knowing the disastrous effect that a repudiation by his own constituents would have at the outset of the pre-convention campaign.

William J. Bryan is the over-shadowing figure in this fight against Underwood. He is behind L. B. Musgrove, the chief opponent of Underwood.

Bryan on Stump Tour.
Bryan has been stumping the state
for Musgrove, and has made a special effort to stir drs, women, organized labor, and progressives generally, to support him against the senator. Musgrove came within 900 votes of defeating Underwood in the senatorial fight four years ago.

M. A. Dinsmore, regarded as friendly to McAdoo, is another candidate,
but the fight seems to lie between Underwood and Musgrove.

If Underwood should be beaten by Musgrove he would be virtually eliminated.

McAdoo-Hefflin
Debate Proposed

Alabama Senator Offers to Divide Time at Meeting
Here Friday.

Division of time at a mass meeting
here Friday between William G. Mc-Adoo, candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency, and Senator J. Thomas Hefflin, supporter of the candidacy of Senator Oscar Underwood, is proposed in an announcement given out Sunday night by the Underwood headquarters.

In event Mr. McAdoo fails to accept the invitation to a joint discussion, the Underwood headquarters announce that Senator Hefflin will be glad to divide time with any designated McAdoo representative.

The meeting will be held Friday night at the auditorium. Mr. McAdoo will make an address at noon of that day in Marietta and will be in Atlanta
on that night, it is stated.

The Underwood statement follows:
"The Underwood committee has secured the Atlanta auditorium for the night of March 14—next Friday—when Senator J. Thomas Hefflin will address the people of this community
in the interest of the candidacy of Senator Oscar W. Underwood. Senator Hefflin will be delighted to divide time on the same platform with any designated McAdoo supporter, with particular preference that the division of time be with Mr. McAdoo himself."

pany, who was killed yesterday when he was thrown from a horse, will be

church on Fifth avenue Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, it was ap-

DAUGHERTY RELATIVE

Committee Busy Tracing
Leaks in Subpoena Service See Chance of Reason Therefor.

Washington, March 9.—Whether the senate investigation of Attorney General Daugherty will begin this week with Mr. Daugherty in or out of office appeared tonight as uncertain as ever.

Today there was quiet in the situation preceding the new storm expected to break over the question of Mr. Daugherty's future service when the committee opens hearings.

The attorney general apparently continues in the position that he will not consider resigning until the conclusion of the inquiry. Notwithstanding that many administration leaders are making slight effort to conceal their belief that his retirement would remove much embarrassment. Those in charge of the investigation also are known to prefer proceeding without Mr. Daugherty at the helm of the department of justice.

Revolt Angle First.
It now appears that the first line
of inquiry in the investigation will relate to the charges that former Secretary Fall and the Doherty and Sinclair oil interests aided in furthering the present Mexican revolution through the shipment of arms and ammunition to the revolutionists.

Special attention is to be given to the reports that the department of justice agents engaged in preventing neutrality violations on the Mexican border were "called off by Washington."

The Mexican revolution angle,
Chairman Brookhart and Senator Wheeler, democrats, Montana, said today, probably will be given precedence because of its present importance and be submitted for the original plan to open the inquiry on the charges of alleged failure of the department of justice to prosecute antitrust cases recommended by the federal trade commission.

Seek Subpoena Course.
Members of the committee who have been concerned that names of some of the witnesses summoned in connection with the Mexican revolution angle have become public, are seeking to learn whether the subpoenas went through the offices of United States Marshal Walker at San Antonio.
Chairman Brookhart announced today that he had received confirmation of reports that Mr. Walker is a brother-in-law of the attorney general.

Plans for the hearings still are in the formative stage and because of the preliminary work required and the urgency of the situation.

BREWER SQUEALS
OVER HIGH COSTS
FOR "PROTECTION"

St. Louis, March 9.—Following the alleged confession by an official of the Griesedick Brothers company that he had paid a prominent state official of Missouri approximately $15-000 over a period of fourteen weeks for protection in the manufacture and sale of real beer, federal officials were today investigating the disclosure in an effort to determine how the protection was delivered, according to an article to appear in Monday's edition of the Globe-Democrat.

According to the confession the official of the brewery paid for "protection" at the rate of $1 for every case sold, the paper states.

The names of persons involved have not been disclosed.

Birmingham, Ala., March 9.—While returning from a nearby drug store
with some ice cream for a sister, ill
in the hospital, Dorothy Ware, eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.
K. Ware, of this city, was probably fatally injured today when she was struck by an Alabama Great Southern freight train.

She was riding a bicycle and an umbrella obstructed her view of the onrushing train.

THRILL IN KISSES

THIS PAIR SAYS

Brussels, March 9.—The old folks received a thrill here when M. Nevre mont took Eloise Dupont for his wife.
Eloise was still able to blush when she walked to the altar at the age of 73, and when the ceremony was over the groom gallantly kissed her, despite his 78 years.

The bride was given away by her father, John Peter, whose radiant smile covered up many of his 102 years and nine months. A witness at the wedding was a sister of the bride, 76 years old.

FIRST OIL CASES

Move to Recover Teapot Dome Will Precede Filing of Criminal Action Against Fall.

Washington, March 9.—As the oil committee opens up new fields of inquiry this week, special government counsel in the oil cases will institute
the first of the court proceedings looking to the recovery of the naval fuel reserves from the Sinclair and Doherty interests.

These proceedings will take the form
of applications for temporary injunctions for the stoppage of the extraction of oil in Teapot Dome in Wyoming and naval reserve No. 1 in California.

The first application will be filed in the federal district court in Wyoming and will involve the Mammoth Oil company, a Sinclair concern. The application in the federal district court in southern California involving the Pan-American Petroleum company will follow that.

No Time Announced.
Government counsel has not yet announced even a probable time for the filing of the injunction suits and the institution of criminal proceedings growing out of the leases granted by Albert B. Fall, as secretary of the interior and signed by Edwin Denby
as secretary of the navy.

The oil committee will be in recess
tomorrow, but on Tuesday it will resume its inquiry into the affairs of Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, as they relate to the oil matter. McLean probably will be required to attend upon the committee that day, but he may not take the stand until Wednesday as Senator Walsh,
chief prosecutor, desires to question
some of McLean's employees before he is questioned.

Byfield-Candler
Jurors Will Be
Recharged Today

Members Spend Quiet Day
Sunday at Decatur
Courthouse.

The jury in the $100,000 suit of Mrs. Clyde Byfield against Walter
T. Candler, local capitalist, will re-assemble in the Decatur courtroom at 7 o'clock this morning to receive further instructions from the court. The twelve jurors spent an uneventful
Sunday, retiring to their improvised beds in the DeKalb county courthouse early in the night.

Due to inclement weather the jury was forced to remain indoors throughout the day, except when the procession filed through the streets to a restaurant at breakfast, noon and for the evening meal.

The quiet, dreary day was broken
only by numerous telephone calls received at the courthouse inquiring about the jury. According to Sheriff McCurdy, the jurors were made quite comfortable in the courthouse, and all seemed in the best of spirits and health.

Consideration of the case, in which Mrs. Byfield alleges that Candler attacked her in a store room aboard the
S. S. Berengaria while bound for France in the summer of 1922, will be resumed after Judge John Hutcheson, of the Stone Mountain judicial circuit, recharges the jury.

Deliberations were halted late Saturday night when the jury requested
further instructions from Judge Hutcheson. Judge Hutcheson immediately sent for court reporters, but it was five minutes after midnight before one could be brought to the courtroom. The judge then declared himself powerless to deliver the charge on Sunday, and the jury was asked to retire and decide what time they wished to be recharged.

The jury retired and soon after asked to be recharged at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Forgotten Derringer Is

MYSTERIOUS STRANGER IS FIGURE IN CASE

Confession of Killer Unfolds Strange Drama of Revenge, Cool Plotting,
and Fear-Filled Days.

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—(Special.)—William Gates, 31, surrendered and confessed to the slaying of Richard Heaton; Frank Cordell, a private detective of Indianapolis, was arrested
in that city on a charge of kidnapping,
and several other persons were questioned by the police today in connection with the slaying last night of Heaton,
who, police say, had held Gates prisoner two days and nights with the intention of performing an operation upon him.

In his confession, Gates told of his seizure in Heaton's office, Thursday night, of being taken to a house in Thirty-fourth street and bound to a mattress that had been pegged to the floor in a room that evidently had been prepared for an operating room
and for any other eventuality in case
the operation proved fatal.

Heaton Overlooked Pistol.
An old-fashioned .41-calibre derringer,
overlooked by his captors and forgotten by him in the excitement,
brought death to Heaton and escape
to Gates last night while Mrs. Heaton, over whom the trouble is said to have arisen, was on the first floor of the house, innocent, the police believe, of the charges her husband had made against her.

Cordell was arrested on a charge
of kidnapping, it being alleged he aided Heaton in seizing Gates and removing him to the house, which, according to the police, was rented a short time before for the purpose Heaton had in mind.

Mysterious Stranger, Too.
Gates told the police that at Heaton's request, he had gone to the office of Heaton & Fisher,
merchandise brokers, Thursday night,
and that Heaton and a "mysterious stranger" held him up with pistols and handcuffed him. About 10 minutes later he stated he was taken in an automobile to a house in Thirty-fourth street and immediately to a room on the second floor that had been fitted up like an operating room
and tied to a mattress that was pegged down to the floor.

When he was seized he was relieved of a pistol he was carrying in his coat pocket, he declared.
Heaton, according to Gates' story as

POINCARÉ STAKES
HEAD ON TAX VOTE

French Premier Stands
Flatfooted on Demand
for Bill—Senate Poll Vital to Government.

Paris, March 9.—The Poincaré government faces another crisis in the senate this week, when the fiscal measures and increased taxation come up in the upper house for discussion and a vote. The fight will come on the first article, granting the government power to enact certain measures
by decree. The senate committee strongly opposes giving the government such authority and Premier Poincaré will insist upon it and stake
the question of confidence in the government on the vote.

The premier and M. De Lasteyrie and high officials of the Bank of France met at Elysee palace today under the presidency of M. Millerand, president of the republic, to study the exchange situation. A cabinet council tomorrow will decide on the government's final attitude before the senate, which, according to the official utterances of M. Poincaré, will be one of uncompromising insistence that the senate vote the bill as passed by the chamber without change.

The entire radical socialist party
and 140 senators are solidly lined up against the government and it appears that the premier is in for a duel for his political life, which overhadows
that at the chamber last week.

Says New Method Heals Rupture

Kansas City Doctor's Discovery Makes Truss or Operation Unnecessary

A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of Dr. Andrews, well known Hernia Specialist, of Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Constitution who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today.

FAVORABLE RESIDENCES AND STORES BOOED

Five residences and one store were looted by burglars during the early hours of Sunday morning, a harvest of approximately $200 in cash, in addition to jewelry and clothing, being reaped by the marauders.

The heaviest loser was P. Beamin, in the Goldenrod apartments at 257-61 Woodward avenue, where $120 in cash, a watch and some clothing were stolen.

Two other tenants in this apartment, A. S. Hirsch and A. Mendelson, were robbed. The latter's loss was $12, a watch and some clothing, while the former lost a pair of shoes and $1 in money.

Dr. Earl G. Dowda, 79 Morgan street, also was the victim of hands, his home being ransacked and $50 and a quantity of clothing taken.

Entrance to Dr. Dowda's residence was gained by "jimmying" a rear window, the thieves working so quietly that the members of the family were not disturbed from their sleep.

J. H. Irwin, 338 Forrest avenue, reported the loss of $8 in money, a watch and a fraternity pin Sunday morning.

The North Boulevard drug store, at 307 North Boulevard, was broken into, entrance being gained by smashing the plate glass in the front door. It had not been determined late Sunday night what had been taken.

Three Suspects In Auto Theft Case Arrested

Three well-dressed young men, believed by police to be members of an automobile theft syndicate, were arrested in Atlanta Sunday night. Two of them, L. G. Morton, 18, R. L. McClain, 21, both of Birmingham, have confessed to East Point light stiring car in Birmingham Sunday and attempting to dispose of it in this city Sunday night, according to detectives.

The other suspect, C. W. Estes, 23, alias of Birmingham, denies any knowledge of the theft.

Arrests were made by City Detectives T. J. Harrison, S. A. Smith and former detective chief, A. Lamar Poole. McClain was arrested in a passenger coach which was being switched in the Terminal station yards to be attached to a Birmingham train, while Estes and Morton were found in a downtown hotel.

Estes stoutly denies any connection with the theft, but is being held with the other two on a blanket charge of suspicion, pending a probe of his record in Birmingham. The car will be returned to its owner Monday.

SENATOR HARRIS PRAISES NELSON

Washington, March 9.—Senator W. J. Harris, of Georgia, spoke today in tribute to the late Senator Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, at the memorial exercises of the senate. A great friendship existed between Senator Harris, one of the younger senators and Senator Nelson, a federal soldier, that was founded on the cordial relations between the late senator and General Joe Wheeler, as they served together in the house. Senator Harris' wife is a daughter of General Wheeler.

The two Minnesota senators requested the Georgia senator to speak at the exercises.

Senator Harris said: "As the son of a Confederate soldier I deem it a privilege to pay my humble tribute to one of the two Union veterans with whom I have had the honor to serve in the senate.

"The world is better because Knute Nelson lived. At the age of six he came to the United States from his birthplace in Norway, and without influence and advantages of education made his own way into positions of honor, which he occupied with credit to himself and constructive service to his country. His life is an inspiration to every young American boy."

"As chairman of the Judiciary committee of the senate, on which the great lawyers of this body served, Senator Nelson was modest and unassuming. He held other positions of honor in the state of Minnesota and during his long membership in the senate and house."

"Dropped from the end of war, Senator Nelson had every reason to be proud of his public service but nothing in his career reflected greater credit than his splendid record as a soldier in the federal army of the sixties. Brave soldier that he was, he stopped fighting when the war was over, and he was broad enough to realize that the strength of this nation lay in the unity of north and south. He realized as all of us should that in the event of trouble with a foreign country the sons of confederate and federal soldiers would be the most earnest defenders of our flag."

"It is my strong conviction that fewer sons of confederate and union soldiers were slackers in the World war than any other group. They have no sympathy with any efforts to overthrow our form of government."

"Forgotten Personal Feelings. "Senator Nelson, though not strong and well at the time, made the long journey to Atlanta in very severe weather to attend the funeral of Senator Bankhead, the last confederate veteran serving in this body. He was anxious to do his part in welding all sections of this country into one great nation."

"While serving in the senate during the World war and the bitter period following the armistice, Senator Nelson never once allowed any prejudice to influence his action, and was guided only by the desire to do what he thought was for the best interest of our country in May."

"Walked Over Obstacles. "Senator Nelson believed in, and in his daily life lived up to, the old religion which is needed today. It is the only thing that will solve many of the vital problems that confront this demoralized world."

"The life of Senator Nelson is an example to all of us. It was my pleasure to find along life's pathway are to some stumbling blocks; to others, stepping stones. It depends upon the traveler, some stumble and fall over them; others step upon them and rise."

"In going over my home state, I was often asked about different members of this body. It was my pleasure to tell them that there was no better man, nor more useful member than Senator Nelson."

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

Does Your Back Foretell Every Change of the Weather? Do You Feel Old and Stiff and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, stiff and achy? Are you nervous and depressed; feel tired, worn-out and miserable? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys are apt to weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold finds many folks suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities. If this is the case with you, don't risk neglect! Help your weakened kidneys with a stimulant diuretic. Begin using Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Local users testify to their worth. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Atlanta Folks:

T. J. LEE, 140 Ormond St., says: "While I was in the army I could not get on my feet and it settled in my kidneys. My back bothered me and when I stooped a catch seized me in the small of it and to straighten was a task. My kidneys acted too often and broke my rest at night. I made up my mind to try Doan's Pills and one box from Jacobs Pharmacy was all I needed to effect a cure. I have had no return of the complaint."

MRS. C. G. WYNNE, 51 W. Fair St., says: "I used to be troubled with backache, caused from disordered kidneys. My kidneys throbbed like a toothache and I couldn't lift the least thing. Any work about the house tired me quickly, but the worst trouble of all was the too free action of my kidneys. I bought Doan's Pills at Franklin & Cox's Drug Store and a few eased the backache. A full box of Doan's relieved me completely."

PRATT INTERESTS INJUNCTION LIFTED

Marietta, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—With the lifting of the temporary restraining order filed by the Washington Land company to prevent the condemnation of certain lands on the Coosawatie river in Gilmer county for the purpose of developing the $5,000,000 hydro-electric project there, indications here tonight are that officials of the Pratt interests, against whom the injunction was brought, will begin at once to push the proposition.

The injunction dissolved last night by order of Judge D. W. Blair, of the Blue Ridge circuit here, was brought against the Pratt interests in an effort to prevent another company entering the field of power production in competition with the Georgia Railway and Power company, and was a combine, defendants claimed. Plaintiffs were given 20 days to which to file a bill of exceptions. "We expect the Washington Land company to file the bill of exceptions in the time limit, but we think that we will also succeed," Mr. Pratt stated. "There has been no let-up in our preparations, and we are going right ahead with our work there. This property is necessary for the full development of our plans, but we expect to get it."

Charges launched by defendants attempted to show that officials of the Georgia Railway and Power company were also connected with the Washington Land company in official position. Sensational charges of Dr. N. P. Pratt and his brother, George L. Pratt, were to the effect that the Washington Land company had no interest in the land except to prevent the acquisition of the lands by the Pratt interests and that they do not intend to develop the lands.

The hearing was the outgrowth of an injunction issued several days ago by Judge Blair at the instigation of the Washington Land company to prevent the condemnation of certain lands which Mr. Pratt alleges are necessary for the development of the project. The land will be used as back water land, and was originally owned by John T. Dorsey, Marietta attorney. Roy Dorsey, of Atlanta, Mrs. Lillie S. Moore, and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hutchinson, also of Atlanta.

Corruption Laid. Mr. Pratt claimed that he did not begin to seek easements on the property in question until he had interested capital to the extent of $5,000,000, that before he instituted condemnation proceedings, owners sold out the Washington Land company and that he then filed the notice of condemnation.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs in the injunction proceedings denied allegations which imputed "corruption" to original owners in selling and to them in buying the property. John T. Dorsey, witness for the plaintiffs, said that there was no such intention in his mind and that he would use stronger language in the denial if it were not for his respect for the court.

Mr. Pratt recounted his efforts to buy the land from the original owners. The Dorseys asked time to consider propositions made by the company and in the meantime others interested were evasive, he said. The defense cited that H. M. Atkinson, president of the Washington Land company, is also serving in an official capacity with the Georgia Railway and Power company, and that other officers of the Georgia Railway and Power company assisted in appraising the lands and gave expert advice to original owners for which they never presented bills.

Spook Machinery 'Spiked by Knots' Tied by Houdini

Once again Houdini has thrown a monkey-wrench into the spook machinery—just as his fellow members of Scientific American Psychic Institute have done.

Mediums with certain powers have saved strongly of the supernatural. Houdini is to appear here on the night of Thursday, March 13, at Woman's Club auditorium to discuss fraudulent mediums and "Miracle Mongers" and to offer sensational demonstrations.

Nino Pecoraro, a young Italian medium, the protégé of Dr. Anselmo Vecchio, admittedly had been guessing, according to J. Malcolm Biel, secretary of the group, in his report of the sittings in the February Scientific American. Two sittings had been held. The committee wired Houdini to come to New York from Alabama for the third test, so the great trickster canceled a week of

Mr. Wood will be the first called, probably. Subpoenas also have been issued for Jake Hamon, Jr., and Mrs. Gorman, formerly Clara Smith Hamon.

With these and other phases of the all matter still to be heard in the end of the investigation appears to be many weeks away.

daily receipt of documents and other information which must be examined by the day for opening the inquiry has not yet been definitely fixed. Senator Brookhart said tonight it might be on Tuesday, but more likely a day or two later. Some of the witnesses already are in Washington and others are due here tomorrow.

Convention Deal to Oil Body. Examination into political angles in connection with the 1920 republican convention offer broached by the reports of an offer to Major General Leonard Wood of the presidential nomination contingent upon his service in the late Jake Hamon, Oklahoma oil millionaire, as secretary of the interior, it was indicated by Chairman Brookhart, who made it clear the committee expects to confine its efforts to subjects in which Mr. Daugherty or his principal aides or associates have been actively concerned.

J. M. Alvarez Del Castillo, representative of the De la Huerta revolutionists of Mexico issued a statement tonight declaring a section that the revolution sought or received aid from petroleum companies with interests in Mexico was untrue.

Huerta Agent Denies Claim. "Our only contact with the oil interests," he said, "has consisted merely in affording them full protection and advising those concerns operating in territory under our control that they would be required to pay the legitimate taxes fixed by law to the de facto authorities instead of the Obregon government."

"No arms or ammunition intended for the revolution, have, to my knowledge been introduced from the United States across the border into Mexico."

The statement said revolutionary forces operating in the northern states were armed for the most part in United States rifle captured in action, after they had been delivered to the Obregon forces at Eagle Pass and El Paso. No effort was being made to purchase arms in the United States, it added.

right of way on all railroad lines leading to Castlegate.

The point where the majority of the men are believed to be entombed is four miles from the entrance of the shaft. At noon, the rescuers were little more than half way there, their way was impeded by fire and gas, and they did not expect to break through until some time in the evening. Even the gas masks of the rescuers were not entirely adequate protection from the deadly fumes.

Fire Added to Horror. George Wilson, a member of the rescue party, died early in the day from the effects of the gas, and several other members were overcome and had to be carried to the surface.

The mountain side and the canyon are covered with debris hurled down by the effects of the gas, and the series of explosions that caused the disaster. First indications that the mine was on fire was made late Saturday night when dense volumes of smoke poured from the mine.

Castlegate Is 116 miles southeast of Salt Lake City and has a population of approximately 1,500. The mine is said to be the largest coal mine in the state.

DAYS OF HORROR PRECEDE KILLING

related by the police, immediately began to prepare for an operation. He ordered some men to form into a tunnel filled with water.

Feigns Delirium

Gates feigned delirium when the anesthetic was administered, he told the police, and began muttering. His mutterings, he said, attracted Heaton, who got down close to him and in a cajoling voice urged him to talk. He said that he then mumbled something about some letters he had written in a book in Loganport, Ind., telling him that if he did not do anything he would be responsible for the deaths of the men.

This, he declared, he confidently believed saved him as Heaton abandoned his plans and left the room. Friday at noon he said he was taken, handcuffed, to Heaton's office and made to telephone his aunt in Loganport, who told her to mail the letters to him in Louisville. He then was returned to the house and tied on a bed.

Afraid to Talk

During the day he said some other person came into the room and that he was afraid to say anything for fear Heaton might also be at hand.

Albion G. Searles, another man, someone it later developed that it was Mrs. Heaton—came to the house. Shortly thereafter, he declared, Heaton entered the room and at his (Gates') request, released him and led him to the bathroom. Upon arising, he said, the derrick in his vest pocket moved, and he realized what was to happen. He turned to leave the bathroom, he stated, he drew the derrick and ordered Heaton to put up his hands.

Heaton Reached for Gun. Instead, he declared, Heaton reached for a pistol he had just laid aside while he had unlocked the handcuffs, and then he fired two shots, both of which hit Heaton.

Costless, Gates stated that he fled down stairs and told Mrs. Heaton he had shot her husband. Returning, he was told by a physician, who had been attracted to the scene by the shots, that Heaton was dead. He got a coat, he stated, and departed. Finally, he said, he went to the home of relatives at Ashmore, a suburb where he was found this morning after police had been notified.

The police questioned him as to the important phases of the case but, because of his condition, postponed questioning him further. He was in a very nervous condition, the police said.

Heaton Very Jealous. Police expressed the belief tonight that Heaton was insanely jealous and stated that Gates was one of four or five men whose names he had mentioned in connection with Mrs. Heaton. Police have been unable to locate any man, except Gates, said to have been mentioned by Heaton, and added they had not been able to prove that the relations between Gates and Mrs. Heaton was other than that of friendship.

Gates formerly was employed by Heaton, but left him several years ago to become a salesman.

who was questioned by the police, told of a visit to the Thirty-fourth street house Thursday night. Heaton called Conrad a boyhood friend, and asked him to come to the broken office, according to Conrad. Later, in company with two strangers, Conrad went to the house, unaware, he said, of the imprisonment of Gates, and spent the night there. He was released after the questioning.

Fisher Threatened With Death. W. A. Fisher, Heaton's partner, told the police of a nerve-racking experience he had at the Thirty-fourth street house Friday. He said he had gone there at Heaton's request and name Heaton was told by Heaton that a man who was ashamed of himself and for that reason would not reveal his identity, had confessed to improper relations with Mrs. Heaton, was in bed on the second floor. Fisher said he was asked to stay with him while Heaton went to his own home. He said that when he departed Heaton threatened to kill him if he told anything.

Frank Cowdell, Indianapolis private detective, told the Louisville Courier-Journal over long distance telephone from Indianapolis, before his arrest this afternoon, that he aided Heaton in his escape from Chicago when he hired him last week—to kidnap Gates.

Cordell was "stranger," according to the newspaper, admitted he was in "Brooks" street Thursday night when Heaton came in and said that Heaton had said in effect: "Let's get him. He stole some stuff from me." Cordell handcuffed him, and Heaton grabbed Gates and returned to Indianapolis at 10:30 o'clock Thursday night.

A Mrs. Moore, Chicago detective agency operative, told of being employed by Heaton, who gave the name "Rivers," to watch his wife. After two weeks she said she had obtained nothing detrimental to Mrs. Heaton's character and had so informed Heaton in a note in which she also resigned.

Elaborate preparations had been made for the operation, according to the police. Anesthetics, surgical instruments, bandages, sulphuric acid, a hatchet and ax being found in the room. In addition three large boxes and a quantity of rubber sheet were present. These, coupled with the presence of the hatchet and ax, led the police to believe these preparations were made to dispose of the body, in the event the operation proved fatal.

Police said tonight that Gates felt the cringer for the first time Thursday night when Heaton loosened his anesthetic. The first chance he had to use it came Saturday night when Heaton was preparing to again fasten him down to the mattress after having taken him to the bathroom.

CORDELL INVOLVED IN ANOTHER PLOT

Indianapolis, Ind., March 9.—Frank Cordell, an operative of a local private detective agency arrested here tonight in connection with the alleged kidnapping of William Gates at Louisville, faces charges in a local court in connection with an alleged attempt to extort money from John Hearn, aged farmer of Edgewood, Ind., near here. Cordell, Robert McElroy and Anna and Charles Hasselburg, all employees of the agency, were arrested after indictment by the Marion county grand jury.

Hearn alleged he was held a prisoner for two days in a house at Edgewood and forced to sign a false statement to the effect that he had attacked Mrs. Hasselburg's sister. His captors then threatened to prosecute him unless he paid them a sum of money, he charged.

Thousands Jam Auditorium On Final Conference Day

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON,
Editor Christian Index.

Continuous rainfall did not deter the thousands who had planned to attend the tabernacle Bible conference on the closing day and as a result the crowds that literally surged into the spacious auditorium Sunday were declared by the oldest members of the tabernacle to be the largest ever seen at the morning hour. Many were turned away, and again in the afternoon and at night the people could not be seated. Every available space for standing was taken and the ushers were forced finally to close the doors to keep within the fire regulations.

The day began with an address by Dr. Curtis Lee Lous on "How Much Are You Worth?" Dr. Lous is editor of The Watchman-Examiner, New York City. He has many friends in Atlanta who look forward eagerly to his visit every year for the Bible conference. He made a profound impression Sunday morning in his address which comes direct to the everyday phases of the Christian religion. Dr. and Mrs. Lous leave Monday morning at 6 o'clock for Dallas, Texas, where he goes for a week's engagement in the Tenth Avenue church. He will return to New York at the end of the week.

At 11 o'clock Dr. George Truett preached. It was a sermon based on Paul's conception of the victorious life. Dr. Truett was never more effective and the great audience went away deeply impressed with his glorification of the Christian ideal of life.

Dr. Truett declared that Paul's life was victorious because he practiced wholehearted concentration. And that he was victorious because he cultivated wise forgetfulness of his blunders, of his losses, of his injuries, of his sorrows, of his successes and of his sins. He emphasized the fact that Paul lived for two worlds and that this is the true secret of the victorious life for everyone.

Sunday afternoon Dr. A. T. Robertson concluded his series of addresses on the epistle of John. Dr. Robertson's work has been specially interesting for the reason that it gave a variety to the sermons and addresses along other lines. He is a teacher and follows the style of the teacher in his work in the conference. He left Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock for Louisville.

Dr. Truett's final message was delivered Sunday afternoon to a packed house. The falling rain did not keep them back and the ushers had at last to turn the people away. Dr. Truett's sermon was based on the exhilarating theme of "the refuge of the soul."

Refuge For Soul Needed.
"Have you a refuge for your soul?" were the solemn words of the preacher as he began the sermon. "I would have you think with me of the absolute need of a refuge against the accusations of your conscience. I would have you bring to God your refuge with the Bible, with your conscience, with the test of life itself, with death and with the judgment day."

Many people deceive themselves by saying that their own innate goodness will answer these tests. Others say that other people's badness is their excuse for not accepting Christ. Still others say they have no faith in any force that will meet the questions of conscience and therefore go brazenly into the face of eternity without hope. There are still others who think that everyone will be saved and that in this universal salvation they need place no thought or worry."

Dr. Truett made a moving appeal at the close of his sermon for Christ as the one hope of the world. He declared that only Jesus Christ can meet these tests of refuge. Many indicated their desire to profess Christ at the close of the service.

Dr. Truett left the city at 6 o'clock last night for his home in Dallas. Dr. E. Y. Mullins preached a great sermon on Sunday night. He holds his lectures with the clear presentation of the great questions of all time. He does not have the fervor of Dr. Truett, but he brings a most engaging style to play which is always captivating.

Best Bible Conference.
It is the unanimous and enthusiastic opinion of all who have attended that this has been the best session of the Bible conference ever held. Everyone is deeply appreciative of the work of Rev. John W. Ham, director of the conference, for his indefatigable leadership in giving to the city and state such a remarkable religious assembly.

Mr. Ham took charge of the conference in 1917, when he accepted the pastorate of the Tabernacle, as one of the phases of the work of the church which he especially desired to promote and in these years has brought it to the point of being the foremost meeting of the sort held anywhere in this section of the country. It is a Bible conference free from any and all of the connections with other conferences and movements. It makes no effort to exploit any particular doctrine or method, but adheres definitely to the clear and vital teachings of the Bible.

The gift on Saturday night at the banquet held at the Tabernacle by the Atlanta Baptist council of a beautiful silver service to Mr. Ham is but a token of the high esteem in which he is held by the Baptists of Atlanta and throughout the state.

He announced Sunday that he is already building his program for a conference in 1925 and he hopes to make it even better than the great program which he has given this year.

NEW TREASURY ISSUE TOTALS $400,000,000

Washington, March 9.—The treasury today announced an issue of four hundred million dollars in one year, four per cent. certificates of indebtedness for refinancing the government in the second quarter of this year.

The certificates will be issued as of March 15 at which time the government must meet $250,000,000 in matured certificates and pay $143,000,000 in interest on the public debt and when it will receive at least the full first quarterly payments on income and profit taxes.

A statement by Secretary Mellon said further interest payments on the public debt would be due April 15 and May 15, totaling $217,000,000, but that no further financial operations would be necessary short of June 15, the next tax paying date.

Treasury officials said they were pleased at conditions in the market at this time which enabled them to offer the securities at a slightly lower rate than heretofore. The last issue, a combined offering of six months and one year maturities carried a four per cent rate for the six months paper and four and one-quarter per cent for the obligations maturing in one year.

Atlanta has been chosen as the meeting place of the big intersectional debate of the entire Southern Baptist denomination for this year. Mercer university, Macon, and William Jewell college, Liberty, Mo., will be the competing schools.

The Atlanta contest will be one point of an intersectional triangle at the close of the service. The alumni of both schools will hold reunions at these debates and many graduates will attend the conventions. The question to be discussed will concern whether the United States should enter the world court.

Both Mercer and William Jewell are old Baptist schools with exceptional forensic records. The high point in the Jewell record in debate includes a defeat of Columbia university of New York City.

J. H. Moore, chairman of the debating council of Mercer university, will be manager of the Atlanta contest.

The Essex county committee of the American Legion is preparing to submit to the New Jersey legislature a bill providing for the erection of a monument to the memory of Woodrow Wilson, who for 24 years maintained his residence in that state.

RICHEY WILL SPEAK IN ATLANTA TUESDAY

A feature of the services Sunday morning at the Gospel tabernacle, 79 Capitol avenue, was the announcement that Rev. E. N. Richey, of Houston, Texas, who assisted his son, Rev. Raymond Richey, in the great Richey meetings at the auditorium last summer, will visit Atlanta again and speak at the tabernacle at 7:30 o'clock next Tuesday night.

Mr. Richey is pastor of the Gospel tabernacle at Houston. He is known affectionately as "Dad" Richey, and will be accompanied to Atlanta by "Ma" Richey. The two will stop over en route to St. Petersburg, Florida, where Raymond Richey is conducting an evangelistic and healing revival.

Sunday night Rev. Ira E. David, pastor of the Gospel tabernacle, delivered the first of a series of four sermons on "The Second Coming of Christ." His subject was "How We Know That Christ Will Return." Next Sunday night he will preach on "The First Resurrection" and the "Translation of the Saints," followed consecutively by "The Great Tribulation" and "The Millennial Reign of Christ," and "The Final Judgment and the New Jerusalem, the Heavenly Home."

Speaking Sunday morning from the topic "Jonah and the Great Revival in Nineveh," Dr. David declared that it is wonderful for sinners that God gives them, like He did Jonah, more than a single opportunity to be saved.

"There are many, many persons who fall down the first time," he said, "but it is so wonderful that God is a God of compassion and gives another opportunity."

"Probably a dozen men and women in Atlanta have told me that they had been called to preach or do missionary work and had disobeyed. It is about time that we accept the commission God gives us, so that we will not meet the fate of Jonah. Grace resisted means judgment invited."

H. F. WEST RETURNS FROM FLORIDA TRIP

H. F. West, the well-known real estate man with offices in the Atlanta National Bank building, who, with Mrs. West, has been on a ten-day business and pleasure trip to Florida, has returned home.

Mr. West says he was very much impressed with two things while on this trip. "Everybody knows about the fine growth of Atlanta, and has good things to say about our city, and all want to talk about the great Stone Mountain Memorial work," Mr. West is interested with the Caldwell-Scott Realty company, prominent Pensacola realtors, in land developments in Escambia county, Florida, on the gulf and along the Gulf Beach highway, which is a concrete road just completed from Pensacola to the gulf, a distance of twenty miles, and said to be the finest piece of road work in the south.

Mr. West reports a very pleasant and profitable trip, but is glad to get home and back into Atlanta's active real estate trading.

COAST ARTILLERY TO BE REVAMPED

Washington, March 9.—Reorganization of the coast artillery corps to provide for the creation of sixteen regiments in the United States and two in the Philippines, was announced today at the war department.

The present numbered companies will be renamed as lettered batteries to form these new regimental units. Existing battalions, assigned to mobilize heavy artillery work will be expanded into full regiments and retain their present designations.

Under the new plan the sixteen regiments will be numbered from one to sixteen inclusive, and the two Philippine scout regiments will be known as the 91st and 92nd Philippine scouts. Some of the regiments will be composed of seven lettered batteries and some of ten.

There Is Only ONE Issue In the Race for Solicitor

Both candidates for solicitor favor the Salary System.

I have tried to help bring about its LEGAL establishment. I have worked toward that end sincerely—as a public officer; not as a candidate.

THAT IS NOT THE ISSUE IN THE RACE FOR SOLICITOR.

The Issue Here Is:

"I BID SO MUCH FOR THE JOB" VS.

"ELECTIONS ARE NOT AUCTIONS"

---and That Is a Real Issue!

—A GRAVE issue; one that imperils the very foundations of free government.

A public officer can GIVE AWAY a part of his earnings to anybody. In fact, most officers ARE generous givers to good causes.

But NO public officer—least of all a law enforcement officer, such as a solicitor—can PAY to ANYBODY ANY PART of his earnings in satisfaction of a bargain like:

"If you will elect me, I will take so much for myself and pay the rest to you."

THAT would degrade the public service. No right-thinking citizen would tolerate it.

SUPPOSE I SAID TO A CHURCH:

"If I am elected, I will give you a certain amount toward your new building fund—"

OR TO A CLUB—OR SOCIETY—OR FRATERNITY—OF CHARITY—OR ANYBODY OR ANYTHING. THERE WOULD BE NO DIFFERENCE. NO MATTER HOW WORTHY THE CAUSE, THE OFFER TO PAY FOR VOTES WOULD BE CORRUPTING.

"When our elections to fill public offices shall be influenced by pecuniary offers made by the candidates to the electors, a most vital condition of free government will be disregarded. Elections controlled by mercenary considerations speedily and justly fall into public contempt." So says the law.

THAT is the issue HERE and NOW

Gate City Mattress Co.

Doing Good Renovating

The Gate City Mattress company, who began making mattresses away back in 1890 and with a reputation that extends all over the south, are better able than ever now to take care of the needs of their old and new customers, having recently added some new equipment and machines of special design.

This company carries a great variety of ticking and other materials in their line. This season's patterns in ticking being very attractive and much special work is being done this spring.

When it comes to renovating an old mattress and making a new one out of it there are few, if any, that can excel the Gate City in this branch of the mattress business, as this firm has been specializing in the making of new mattresses out of old ones for the past ten years or more.

To any one not familiar with this line of business it is surprising what these people can do with an old mattress that looks only fit to be thrown away or discarded. By working over the old cotton or other filler with a machine called a "picker," they make it soft and "fluffy" again and after it is cleaned and a new cover put on your mattress is now like new at a small cost.

This firm has a large plant at 404 Decatur street, and the men and women employed are all people of long experience in this line and they know how to make a comfortable mattress out of an old one in very quick time.

Mr. P. S. Hornbuckle, the president, states that his firm guarantees all their work and if you give his company a ring at Ivy 6478, he will send an expert to your house, who will give you an estimate on what new special work or renovating you want done.

Allen Insurance Agency

Breaks All Old Records

Luther E. Allen, general agent for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, announces that the outlook for the future is very promising and that more than 50 per cent of the old policy-holders are represented in the new business written last year.

All of this speaks volumes for his agency which is the oldest in Atlanta, being established over 50 years ago, and has local representatives in 128 counties in Georgia.

Mr. Allen has here in Atlanta a very able corps of agents, including among them being Mrs. Daisy E. Bagwell, Miss Jean Douglas, Cecil Rittenbaum Bros.

Have Big Trade
In Wiping Cloths

Rittenbaum Bros., who have been established for more than 22 years at 472-481 Decatur street, where they have the largest up-to-date sanitary wiping cloths laundry in the south.

When this firm began business the washing by the old hand method. Now they have the most latest modern machinery and are equipped to wash all manner of soiled wiping cloths, and after they chemically boil and sterilize each cloth it again looks like new.

It would be astounding to know what great amount of these wiping cloths are washed during a week by this busy firm, and it would also be surprising to see the great bundles of these soiled cloths that come from all sections of the south to be washed.

This firm also does a big business in waste material, handling over 2,000,000 pounds of it in 1933, and at present are doing an enormous business in sawing up this waste material.

A firm like this Rittenbaum Bros. does a wonderful lot of good each year in their reclaiming waste materials, and provide a big market for material that has become of little or no value to its owner, yet when it is worked over by this concern it again becomes of some use and a market value.

All those connected with this firm are very enthusiastic about the future in their line and expect that this will be the greatest year in their history.

BARNESVILLE MAN TAKES OWN LIFE WITH PISTOL SHOT

Barnesville, Ga., March 9.—(Special)—O. J. Herman, plumber, shot and killed himself late Saturday night in a grove near the A. & M. school here, according to a verdict of a coroner's jury.

His body was found early Sunday morning.

O. J. and W. G. Herman, his sons, with others became alarmed Saturday afternoon and investigated a search, which lasted throughout Saturday night.

Despondency because of ill health is said to have been the cause of the suicide.

Wooden Wives

—By Laura Jean Libbey—

At length fate was kind to the fugitives; fire trouble overtook the pursuing car when they had almost come alongside of the dust-covered taxi.

Weslow's chauffeur saw and instantly took advantage of the situation sending the taxi ahead with a dangerous speed over gulches, fallen boughs, and around curves, that fairly took Daniel's breath away. By a circuitous route he at length reached the Weslow home and turned away from it a hundred dollars richer because of his adventure.

Pauline was busy recovering from her swoon as he laid her down upon the davenport in the library. She saw Daniel standing before her with folded arms, his face white as it would be in death—as she opened her dazed eyes. He put his hands quickly over her mouth to avert the scream of terror on her lips, as memory rushed back to her.

"Hush! you will awaken the servants!" he cried harshly, his intense gaze of fury burning down into her very soul.

"I will explain to you how it happened," she sobbed, struggling to a sitting posture, "then you will understand."

He interrupted her with the harshest laugh that ever fell from a man's lips. "I understand—the whole accursed thing!" he cried. "You have outraged my love, my dignity, and my position—by attempting to meet your lover—in a place no respectable woman would ever set her foot. He pointed to her filmy, torn costume, his voice ringing with scornful words, branding her, allowing her no opportunity to defend herself.

She covered from him in abject terror. She would not have been much surprised if he had forgotten himself so far as to have struck her with his upraised, clenched hand, so great was his anger toward her.

"Go to your room now," he commanded, "tomorrow I will send you back to your father in New York. I will ask Miss Valieu to accompany you."

Without a word Pauline arose; she did not know how she was ever to reach the door, in that costume, with his withering, scornful gaze bent full upon her. His overbearing rage terrified her. As she reached the door, as a parting shot, he called out to her: "I could have had your lover for whom the detectives are searching the country—arrested, then and there—your presence there with him—saved him for the time being."

With stumbling feet Pauline groped her way through the corridor, up the stairs—meeting Marcelle as she opened her boudoir door.

To her surprise Marcelle made no offer to take her in her arms and try to console her. "Marcelle," she whispered, "let me tell you all that has happened to me."

The French girl turned from her with a shrug of her shoulders. "You don't need to; you forget the library door was open—it being directly under this room, I heard distinctly every word he said to you." I was quite amazed to hear you were caught—dancing—with your old lover."

"Listen, Marcelle, do not be like him; do not condemn me when you know how it came about. I am unwilling to dance—I should not."

Marcelle interrupted her with a taunting laugh.

"You would have a hard time trying to convince the world of your innocence. Do you know what you have done—you have ruined Daniel Weslow's prospects for all time to come. He is living, but he knows that you and he escaped detection, while, on the contrary, two newspaper reporters were on hand, awaiting an expected raid on the place. They knew him, and he knew they were there—the worst place imaginable—and got into a broil over a woman. He wouldn't dare say it was his wife. He must shield your name at all hazards. By tomorrow, there is not a paper in Washington that will not have an account of their—honorable—senator's escapade. I have my opinion as to how it will end for him."

"Oh, Marcelle tell me what I am to do! Come with me now to the newspapers and I will tell them just how I happened to go there. You will tell them too, Marcelle, that you said to me that it would be quite all right for me to go. Remember I went on a charitable mission—to help the poor."

Again Marcelle's taunting laugh fell on her troubled ears.

"You ask me what is best for you to do, Pauline Weslow, and I am going to tell you. You must go away at once, within this hour—go as far away that Daniel Weslow will never find you—to work him out of your system. Believe me, you have turned his love to the direst hatred. For your own safety's sake, you must leave him, and go far away, I say."

Pauline came up to her, catching feebly at her skirts. "There is a reason—why—I should not leave—Daniel!" she whispered faintly. "I—I—must—realize—until now—that I must love him, for I—I—she whispered the rest of the sentence brokenly into Marcelle's startled ears, adding: "now you see why I—must not go from him."

"Does he know?" queried Marcelle, sharply. "I imagine not, or he would have mentioned the subject to you tonight."

Pauline shook her head, answering faintly. "No—I did not—tell him. He has decided to send me to father—tomorrow. I would rather die than go there."

"You are quite right—you ought not to go to your father. You must take the midnight train for New York, connecting there for Chicago, anywhere—the farther away—the better. I will furnish you with the money. You must never write to Weslow—write to me, and I will keep you informed as to what the chances are—if any—to affect a reconciliation. Such men as Daniel Weslow grow more bitter with passing time, often."

In her hysterical plight, Pauline was not strong enough to combat Marcelle's strong will, or think for herself.

"You must wear your plainest clothes, Pauline," she went on, "a dark cloth dress—and cape. I have a small dark hat and veil, you must wear them." With deft hands she packed a small grip. "You need not even have the trouble of purchasing a ticket to New York, but can use the one I was to return on."

For the second time that night, Marcelle hustled Pauline out of the house, giving the chauffeur of the taxi—which, by the way, happened to be the same one—the directions to the Grand Central depot.

Marcelle entered her room again, just in time to answer her phone which was ringing. She was startled to find it was Boyd speaking.

"Suppose this time you took leave of all about the frills that took place, I'm a little the worse for handling, but don't look it. The plan worked out beautifully; the dear girl signed the deed which makes over to me—as is clearly specified—every foot of property she owns, both in Washington and the far west—also signing the paper my friend Raddon was so anxious about—which is an action for divorce against Weslow. They will be filed—both papers—the moment the recorder's office is open tomorrow morning. I take the midnight train for New York—my friend Raddon stopping over another day, to see what will be in the papers about tonight's affair."

It was Boyd's turn to register surprise when Marcelle guardedly told him what had transpired after Weslow had gotten Pauline home—the fierce quarrel—and the last surprising news that Pauline had left Daniel and that she, too, was taking the same midnight train for New York. She could hear Boyd laugh boisterously.

"The newspapers will also be informed that the golden haired beauty who was the cause of Weslow's passion, accompanied the man she had been dancing with—to New York on the midnight express," laughed Marcelle.

CHAPTER XVII.

"The mind has a thousand eyes. And the heart but one; Yet the light of the whole world dies When the love is done."

Upon Pauline's departure from the room, Daniel Weslow had dropped into the nearest seat, like one stricken—awaiting death. It seemed to him he was in the grip of a horrible mare from which he must awaken, finding all the events through which he had just passed, were but the beginnings of an overworked brain. With his arms on the table and his head upon them—his mind traveled slowly over all that had occurred. It was no dream—he wished to heaven it were.

Out of his chaotic thoughts, all that was clear to him was that he and the young wife he had loved better than life itself—Pauline, whom he still loved—were parted from this hour—they would be as strangers to each other—and have to live—without her. He felt chances are—if any—to affect a reconciliation. Such men as Daniel Weslow grow more bitter with passing time, often."

CHAPTER XVII.

"The mind has a thousand eyes. And the heart but one; Yet the light of the whole world dies When the love is done."

Upon Pauline's departure from the room, Daniel Weslow had dropped into the nearest seat, like one stricken—awaiting death. It seemed to him he was in the grip of a horrible mare from which he must awaken, finding all the events through which he had just passed, were but the beginnings of an overworked brain. With his arms on the table and his head upon them—his mind traveled slowly over all that had occurred. It was no dream—he wished to heaven it were.

Out of his chaotic thoughts, all that was clear to him was that he and the young wife he had loved better than life itself—Pauline, whom he still loved—were parted from this hour—they would be as strangers to each other—and have to live—without her. He felt chances are—if any—to affect a reconciliation. Such men as Daniel Weslow grow more bitter with passing time, often."

In her hysterical plight, Pauline was not strong enough to combat Marcelle's strong will, or think for herself.

"You must wear your plainest clothes, Pauline," she went on, "a dark cloth dress—and cape. I have a small dark hat and veil, you must wear them." With deft hands she packed a small grip. "You need not even have the trouble of purchasing a ticket to New York, but can use the one I was to return on."

For the second time that night, Marcelle hustled Pauline out of the house, giving the chauffeur of the taxi—which, by the way, happened to be the same one—the directions to the Grand Central depot.

Marcelle entered her room again, just in time to answer her phone which was ringing. She was startled to find it was Boyd speaking.

"Suppose this time you took leave of all about the frills that took place, I'm a little the worse for handling, but don't look it. The plan worked out beautifully; the dear girl signed the deed which makes over to me—as is clearly specified—every foot of property she owns, both in Washington and the far west—also signing the paper my friend Raddon was so anxious about—which is an action for divorce against Weslow. They will be filed—both papers—the moment the recorder's office is open tomorrow morning. I take the midnight train for New York—my friend Raddon stopping over another day, to see what will be in the papers about tonight's affair."

THE GUMPS—NOTHING TO WEAR

state that the man whom the senator from the west had temporarily vanquished—was seen boarding the midnight train for New York—the petite blond in question having boarded it a few minutes before.

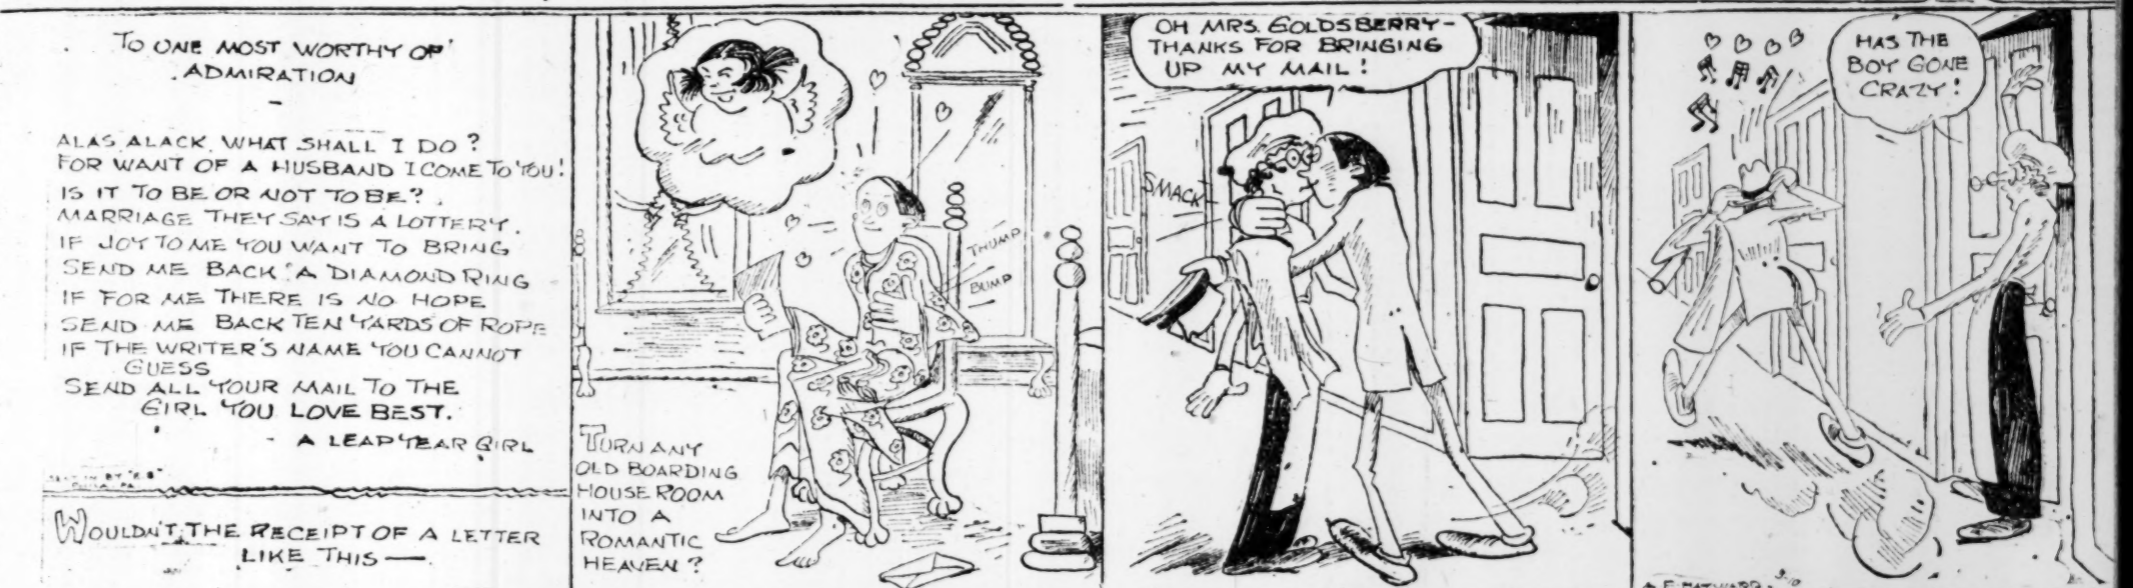

At that moment the servants heard a heavy fall from the direction of the library. Hurrying there, they found Daniel Weslow lying face downward upon the floor, the paper clutched in his hand.

The physician who was hastily summoned—looked grave.

Three days later, Marcelle was permitted to enter the sick-room, and then but for a few moments, and in the doctor's presence—who warned her against causing the patient the least excitement.

Daniel, looking up, as she stood beside the couch, noted she had been weeping. "Do not feel sorry for me, Miss Valieu," he murmured, "I am

Mrs. Miles Poindexter Is Stormy Petrel of Capital

"Lottie, I wish you'd steal my silk stockings or nightgown. I'm quite sure of it. I've nothing to talk about."

Mrs. Poindexter said this to her friend, Mrs. Miles Poindexter, who had just come back from a luncheon one day.

"Deed, ma'am," said Lottie, "I don't have to steal none of your stockings to give you something to talk about."

Now, don't you think Lottie was right?

Mrs. Miles Poindexter had proved to her friends in private, to her intimates and her guests that her conversation wasn't dependent upon a minor domestic tragedy. She has recently convinced the reading public that the stored impressions of over a dozen years of capital society have a very fine point to them.

You know how she broke out into a cold sweat when she was asked to give a toast at the last election. She was confined to the simple westerners one of the things that happen in Washington—awful things, such as a man being served in congressional ones despite the eighteenth amendment, and the privileges and perquisites that go with certain cabinet offices.

"She's most indiscreet," remarked her cabinet wife, "most indiscreet I'll say. Why, if I said those things to my husband, he'd be in a fix."

"Get a diplomatic appointment," a senator's wife concluded for her, with a shrug of indifference.

She makes lots of friends. Mrs. Poindexter isn't the kind of woman who yields readily to restrictions—undue restrictions she might all them—and apparently she is not doing to permit sympathy to her.

As a girl she was an attractive, somewhat younger, who made friends with all the strays and quaint characters in the neighborhood. She was playing tennis one day when a newly arrived eligible young man was being introduced.

"Come here, my dear," said a man to the future Mrs. Poindexter, "I want you to meet Mr. Blank."

"The man hasn't been born. I could cross the terms court to meet him, but I don't want to," and she waved a smiling hand across the court.

DO IT ELECTRICALLY

Forty-one years ago, on Pearl Street, in the City of New York, the first CENTRAL GENERATING STATION was put in successful operation. Conservative people considered it impracticable, but how foolish were their fears.

Today there are 7,500 companies in operation which furnish 75 per cent of all the power used by our industries.

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

EDITORIAL.

The feminine desire for new Easter hats is as much an urge of the spirit of springtime as of vanity of woman. Nothing is more expressive of the defeat of winter and the arrival of sunny days than a gay new bonnet. The very fact that she herself has fashioned the smart new headgear gives a girl greater satisfaction in wearing it. It is a fulfillment of the universal urge for creation and self-expression. Our pattern service is one of the most modern aids to the modern woman. There is no damper to the spirits so strong as the consciousness of being poorly dressed. Because she need not wear dowdy hats when she can make clever ones at a slight cost, the modern girl is happier, has more self-assurance.

The new honey-comb stitch so elaborate in effect and so easy to make covers the entire visor of model 2306. Navy on sand, jade on open hair, Russian green on Lenin green, or black on white, are only a few possibilities in color combinations. Crepe, satin, taffeta, faille or straw cloth may be used to cover the frame. Just the right width of brim and a becoming height of crown and visor are used to make the hat becoming to many people.

MATERIAL REQUIRED.
One yard 18-inch material, 1 1/2 yard 36-inch crepe or contrasting material, chenille and ribboning, 1 pressed crown, 1 cap lining, 3 1/2 yards braced wire, 1 1/2 yard elastic net or canvas.

HAT PATTERN ORDER.
This order, with 25 cents will bring you pattern and working instructions for making any one of the hats illustrated above. If more than one pattern is desired enclose 25 cents for each pattern. Fill in name and address—enclose stamps, coin or postal note. Address your order: Hat Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

DR. CALEB RIDLEY CONDUCTS REVIVAL AT THIRD BAPTIST

Dr. Caleb A. Ridley, who was recently called to the pastorate of Third Baptist church, began a series of revival meetings at the morning service Sunday, preaching on "The Place of Prayer in a Revival." He also spoke at 10 o'clock to the Sunday school and in the evening on "An Explanation of Pentecost."

There were thirty-four public professions of faith at the morning service. It was announced that there would be services every day at 10 and 7:30 o'clock. Dr. Ridley said he expected to ask the Business Men's Evangelistic club to hold forth one evening, and the Flying Squadron of the Tabernacle on another. Dr. Fred Cochran, of North Carolina, will have charge of all organization work.

FIRE DAMAGE $6,000 TO HOTEL IN AUGUSTA

Augusta, Ga., March 9.—(Special.) Fire originating in the servants' quarters at the Partridge Inn hotel this afternoon inflicted a damage estimated at $6,000. The blaze was confined entirely to the help's quarters and at no time did it assume threatening proportions. The work of the firemen confined the blaze to the one wing.

Georgia Makes Plan For Botanical Garden With Sub-Stations

Athens, Ga., March 9.—(Special.) The establishment of a large botanical garden adjoining the campus of the University of Georgia with many sub-stations throughout the state, probably including the Okefenokee swamp, has been definitely decided upon, and will soon be created as a department of the university to be known as the Southern Plant Institute.

Faculty members of the various science schools in the university say that the garden will bring to Athens annually large numbers of scientists from all over the south to see the garden.

Shipwrecked Officer Of Dougherty County Is Still "Stranded"

Athens, Ga., March 9.—(Special.) William E. Smith, ordinary of Dougherty county, missing since last October, has not yet returned home, though messages, presumably from him, were received here four days ago.

He reported from Tampa that he had just arrived there, after having been shipwrecked, and asked that money be sent him so that he could come home. The sum requested was $100. He was expected on every train arriving Saturday and Sunday but tonight is still missing.

Whether he has been delayed or the messages to his family and friends here were faked by a party representing himself to be Smith, is not known. Efforts were being made Sunday to locate Smith, but the only certain thing now is that Smith is still missing.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Avoid Rust.
Let the oven doors stay open after using the oven. Then the warm air will evaporate without rusting the oven.

Don't Take Long.
You will find all electrical appliances will wear longer and better if care is taken to straighten out the cords after each using.

A Cleaner Floor.
If the canary is a very busy little fellow and constantly scatters seed over the floor, make a chesscloth bag with an elastic at the top and pull this up over the bottom of the cage, covering the feed cups.

Antique Brass.
We do not like to use a brass polish on our antique brass, as we wish to avoid a bright polish. Try rubbing with a solution of vinegar and salt and it will make it clean-looking without that bright polish.

Let Them Have Pets.
Let the child have a pet, if at all possible. A pet develops gentleness and kindness in the child, besides affording a great deal of amusement. And you need never worry who accuses your boy on the street when a growling protector is just waiting for a sign of enmity.

TECH RADIO STATION OFFERS FINE PROGRAM

Radio enthusiasts are advised to get their sets in order by 9 o'clock tonight in order that nothing will prevent them from tuning in on the regular weekly program of the Georgia Tech broadcasting station, which promises to be exceptionally good.

The program will be live broadcast by the Georgia Tech club and orchestra. Piano solo, vocal solos and an address by E. H. Flath, head of the co-operative department of the school, will be other features.

The program follows:
"Song of Love"—By orchestra.
"Midnight Rags"—By orchestra.
Piano Solo—By Ralph Condit.
"Dance"—By orchestra.
Speaker—"The Co-operative Plan of Education"—By Professor E. H. Flath, head of the co-operative department of the Georgia School of Technology.
"Memorial Garden"—By orchestra.
Vocal Solo—Miss Edith Belle Smith, soprano.
Selections from "Prince of Pilsen"—By orchestra.
Vocal Solo—Miss Edith Belle Smith, soprano.

One of the most unsightly things that can trouble the hand is a series of little flutes or ridges running down each nail. There is an excellent formula for treating this condition when it has become aggravated, which I find surprisingly few people know about. Even professional manicurists have rarely heard about it, and I only found one who kept this ointment in stock. It is so cheap and so easy to make I am giving the formula.

Cream for Ridgy Nails.
Table Salt 30 grains
Powdered Resin 30 grains
Powdered Alum 30 grains
White Wax 30 grains
Almond Oil 1-2 ounce

Melt the wax and the resin, stirring gently, and heating only enough so the two blend. Add the oil which should be warm, the salt and the alum, stir together and pour off into a jar and let it cool. Apply to the nails three times a week using a piece of absorbent cotton. And just one precaution: In making up this or any other beauty formula use absolutely clean porcelain-lined saucepans and stir with a glass, porcelain or silver spoon. Do not, of course, use a glass spoon for hot things.

Ridgy or fluted nails are generally due to ill health or to the lack of something in the system. Brittle nails, for instance, are due to lack of lime. Your family doctor can always give you a simple tonic to supply this lack. Ridgy nails respond to treatment with oil if the conditions are not very bad. Smearing the nails and fingers with cold cream when you massage the face is a quick and easy way of treating them. If the ridges are very bad rub them down lightly once a week with a very fine bit of pumice stone. Polish till you have polished off the scratches, rub thoroughly with olive oil. Rub with oil every night.

Mrs. N. G. ... At 26 years of age, height five feet, four inches, weight should be from 125 to 130 pounds.

E. H. M. ... If you must use hard water for shampooing, or for the complexion, boil it first, or better still, distill it. It is never advisable to soften water for this purpose by adding soda, borax or any other chemical. Used for preparing such water for general cleansing purposes. Most people who live where there is hard water, catch rain water and keep it for such purposes.

Here is an Excellent Lotion.
Miss Hazel H. ... The electric curlers have broken off your hair, but they have not injured it in any other way. The powder in compact form is apt to be drying to the skin.

HEARTS AFIRE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

INSTALLMENT 67.
The Whole Truth.
I—I don't know," blurted out the accused, "It—it's a coincidence, that's all."

Prudence—the lantern in one hand, and the heavy candelabra in the other—looked at the speaker as though she would read her very soul.

"You do know," she said quietly, her young face showing no emotion, not even scorn of this cringing woman who was lying to her—lying very badly and unskillfully. Too! "You know as well as I do, that your story of an aunt leaving you these valuables is a trumped-up one. The contents of these boxes belong to Mrs. Vansittart, just as these candlesticks do. I've no doubt you intend to pawn them, or to sell them, but you hadn't the right."

Virginia made a queer, whimpering sound, as though begging for mercy. She was terrified of this new, strong Prudence. How loathsome it was that such a "contemptible" had happened, just when everything was running smoothly, and life was opening up new vistas even beyond all her scheming hopes. If Peter Armstrong got to hear of this—

"I—I'll confess everything—if only you'll promise—not to tell!" She sank down on her knees at Prudence's feet, a despicable spectacle in the eerie lantern rays. "You—you wouldn't be so cruel—as to give me away?"—and she clung to Prudence's skirts, her face white under its make-up, the rouge standing out in startling contrast on her cheekbones, giving the face a grotesque appearance.

Prudence hated the contact of that touch.

"Get up, please," she drew back a little, but Virginia remained as she was, her eyes wild with terror.

"Never, until you promise not to tell! It would ruin me! I—I swear I'll shoot myself, if you won't promise!" And then my blood would be on your head, and you'd never know a good night's rest!" She waxed hysterical, her voice rising higher and higher.

"Hush! Hush!"

"I won't! I don't care what happens now, if Peter Armstrong is to know of this! Rather than he finds out, I'll kill myself!"

It flitted through Prudence's mind, grimly and "sincerely," that if this thrilling creature were to shoot herself, it wouldn't be such a great loss to the world, after all!

"Oh, I darest it would please you . . . you've always hated me . . . you tried to get Bert Traymore . . . and then you wanted Peter . . . now you'd like to see me off the earth . . . and if you tell Peter, I vow I will!"

"Ston!" The younger girl's voice was like a bucket of cold water on the rising hysteria. "Stop for a moment thinking only of yourself! Put yourself in my place, for an instant!"

"I know you want Peter . . ."

"Listen!" Prudence shook her by the shoulder. "This is no time for hedging. We're speaking woman to woman, and you shall hear what I have to say. I want Peter's happiness, not my own . . . not yours . . . you hear?"

Virginia raised her face.

"Peter's happiness?" she repeated blankly, stupidly.

"Just that . . . and nothing else. The question is, if I tell him the truth about you, wouldn't the knowledge be for his greater happiness, his ultimate peace, even though it hurt him at the time?"

"He loves me," wailed Virginia, and heaved desire forced great tears to her eyes, which trickled over the made-up lashes, so that the black mascara ran in murky rivulets down her ashen cheeks.

"Ah! does he?" Prudence's voice had the clear ring of a seeress. "If I were only sure of that. It's a love that hasn't brought him peace, I know. The last time he talked to me, he gave me the impression of a deeply unhappy man. If he does love you, Virginia Dale, he's learning, to his sorrow, that his idol has feet of clay."

"He—he worships me!" Virginia seized on the likeliest weapon to meet this strange, upright girl, who could think of Peter's happiness and not her own. "If you keep this dark . . . it would kill him, he's so honorable . . . he loves me, heart and soul . . . he's said so, a million times . . . if only I can get out of this awful scrape!"

She had risen to her feet now, and was facing Prudence in the little wood. Overhead, the trees were sighing softly, and the owl booted again, as though it laughed at the frail promises of the wretched woman.

"You have admitted the whole truth yet," said Prudence, her young eyes on the haggard features that at this moment seemed to have no grace of beauty. "Tell me, it was you who slipped the diamond earrings and the bills into the such of the frock I wore at Mrs. Vansittart's party?"

The other bowed her head, and murmured an assent.

"You didn't stop to think how wickedly cruel and unjust it was?"

"They were in the frock all the time. I'd forgotten to remove them. I didn't mean to throw the blame on you."

"Oh yes, you did," went on the level accusing young voice. "If you'll take your memory back, you'll recollect that it was you who came and told me Mrs. Vansittart wanted me. It was you who laughed, who tried to shame me."

"Forgive me!" Another burst of hysteria seemed imminent. "If Peter knew, it would kill him, and I—I love him so!"

"Ah! but do you?" Prudence looked into the made-up eyes as though she'd read the soul beneath, if such a soul existed. "Does a woman like you know what real love means, I wonder?"

It was a woman like you capable of giving a man like Peter Armstrong what his heart and spirit cry for? If I thought you couldn't believe me, I shouldn't spare you! His happiness comes first with me. I firmly tell you so!"

"You love him," said Virginia, light dawning on her.

"That," replied the other, "is a question which doesn't in the least concern you. But let me tell you this—your great eyes resting on the women before her—'you'll never know real happiness until you learn that true love is unselfish, love-suffering, and a something infinite, infinitely greater, infinitely stronger than yourself!"

Husband's Gruff Reception Led Wife To Smother Babe

MacLEAN INNOCENT OF DEATH SAYS LAWYER

Augusta, Maine, March 9.—(Special.)—The wife of a man who was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of his infant child February 28, tonight issued a statement declaring that MacLean is innocent. Yesterday MacLean's wife, Nettie May, admitted, according to County Attorney Clement F. Robinson, of Portland, that she smothered the child to death in a moment of aberration following a quarrel with MacLean.

"After careful investigation of the case presented against Kenneth R. MacLean, on account of the death of his little child, we have no hesitation in saying there is absolutely no evidence connecting the young man with the offense," the statement of counsel said.

"At the proper time and place the absolute innocence of MacLean of any wrongdoing will be demonstrated."

"In municipal court at Brunswick yesterday MacLean and his wife entered pleas of not guilty to the manslaughter charges and were held for the May term of the grand jury. Mrs. MacLean, who was freed on $10,000 bail, left for the west last night with her mother, Mrs. Oscar Volk, of Tacoma. MacLean, whose bail was set at $20,000, remained in Portland with his father, Alex R. MacLean, of Tacoma.

The wife, who is only 19 years old, was quoted as saying that when she arrived unexpectedly at Brunswick to show MacLean the baby he had never seen, the student was angry and forbade her to speak to him in public. There was a scene between the two at the Brunswick hotel the night of February 27, and next morning, according to the county attorney's story, the girl, almost penniless, and her mind temporarily unbalanced by her reception, smothered the baby as it slept.

First the body was buried in a shallow grave in the snow. Later, the alleged confession said, the mother reclaimed the body, changed the wet clothing and went by trolley to Portland, 26 miles distant, carrying her dead baby in her arms.

Mrs. MacLean was arrested at an undertaking establishment in Portland when she attempted to make arrangements for her child's burial.

$425 IS STOLEN AS OWNER PLANS RETURN TO HOME

That "the best laid plans of mice and men often gang a-glee" was demonstrated Sunday night, when Alma Howard, colored, was robbed of $425 by a burglar who looted her trunk and escaped while she sat in an adjoining room discussing her "best laid plans." Not only that but Seby Neb, Sengemban, her hostess, was robbed of $25 and a wrist watch by the same burglar.

According to the tale poured in the sympathetic ears of two police officers, Alma Howard arrived in Atlanta several days ago from Michigan—her beloved home. With her she brought more than $500, and Alma had planned to carry most of it.

Several days were whiled away in this southern city with her friend Seby Neb, and then she began to lay plans for her departure. Saturday Alma admitted, she exhibited her roll of currency in the presence of a group of negroes.

General Danglis Dies.

Athens, March 9.—General Paryotis Danglis, former commander-in-chief of the Greek forces, died at night of February 27, at his home in Athens. He was a member of the Saloniki triumvirate with Venizelos and Admiral Contoulouris, regent of Greece. General Danglis was president of the Venizelos league and also president of the executive committee of the liberal party. He was minister of war in the Venizelos cabinet.

General Paryotis Danglis.

La Grange, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—Judge H. T. Woodyard, ordinary of Troup county, died at his home in this place Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock. He had been confined to his bed for the past ten days, and his condition was not regarded as serious until about two hours before his death.

Judge Woodyard was a resident of West Point prior to his election as ordinary of Troup county 20 years ago, which place he has filled continuously. He was a candidate for reelection to succeed himself in the county primary which is to be held next Wednesday. He was a member of the First Baptist church where he had served as clerk and treasurer for a number of years.

The funeral will be held at the First Baptist church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Dr. Spooner Tunnell, after which the remains will be carried to West Point and interred in Pineview cemetery.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Jamie Hurliman, of West Point, and Mrs. Hester, of La Grange, and a son, Henry Woodyard, Jr., of La Fayette, Ga.

Revival at Commerce.

Commerce, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—A revival is being held at the First Methodist church, directed by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Turner. The Wisdom sisters, of Macon, Mo., will arrive in Commerce Monday and remain for a week, assisting in the service. It is expected to give added interest to the meeting.

PLEA FOR RAILROADS IS MADE BY OFFICIAL

Business cannot grow unless railroads increase their facilities for handling it, and in order to place the roads in position to expand the public should permit the railroads to be prosperous, Lee Edwards, vice president of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway, declared Friday in an address before the Civitan club.

"In the last analysis, only as the railroads expand can the business of the country expand," Mr. Edwards said.

Discussing the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway, as one unit of the national railway system, Mr. Edwards gave its history in brief. It was built at a cost of about $40,000,000, and was one of the largest enterprises ever organized and promoted in Atlanta by Atlanta people, he said.

"Unfortunately, it has not proved profitable to the men who invested their money in it," he said. "The fundamental trouble with the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway was that it did not produce as much business as was expected, although you will recall it was out of the receiver's hands in 1916-1917, and made a little money in those years, but, of course, nothing like a return on the investment."

"More than 10 years ago, we made a thorough study of what we might do with the line," he said. "We found that the line would do us no good unless we had a return on the investment."

"Guided by our study, we organized, about 10 years ago, our agricultural department, and have done, through our field agents, a vast amount of agricultural development work in all the counties on our line."

JUDGE WOODYARD, TROUP ORDINARY, DIES AT LAGRANGE

La Grange, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—Judge H. T. Woodyard, ordinary of Troup county, died at his home in this place Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock. He had been confined to his bed for the past ten days, and his condition was not regarded as serious until about two hours before his death.

Judge Woodyard was a resident of West Point prior to his election as ordinary of Troup county 20 years ago, which place he has filled continuously. He was a candidate for reelection to succeed himself in the county primary which is to be held next Wednesday. He was a member of the First Baptist church where he had served as clerk and treasurer for a number of years.

The funeral will be held at the First Baptist church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Dr. Spooner Tunnell, after which the remains will be carried to West Point and interred in Pineview cemetery.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Jamie Hurliman, of West Point, and Mrs. Hester, of La Grange, and a son, Henry Woodyard, Jr., of La Fayette, Ga.

Revival at Commerce.

Commerce, Ga., March 9.—(Special.)—A revival is being held at the First Methodist church, directed by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Turner. The Wisdom sisters, of Macon, Mo., will arrive in Commerce Monday and remain for a week, assisting in the service. It is expected to give added interest to the meeting.

TAKE NO CHANCES WITH THAT COLD

NEXT summer you will hear a lot of sick people say, "Last winter I caught a heavy cold, and couldn't seem to get rid of it."

Don't take such chances yourself. A neglected cold is a dangerous thing. Shake it off by building up your strength and enriching your blood with Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

It is rich in the iron you need and full of the elements that build strong muscles and pure red blood.

Your druggist has it, in both liquid and tablet form.

ATLANTAN WRITES OF TRIP THROUGH SOUTH AMERICA

"Paradoxical as it may seem, South America is a country of cities," according to "Cousin Fred" Honser, secretary of the Atlanta convention bureau, who has been touring that country in the interest of the local convention bureau. "South American cities, some of them, are among the most modern and beautiful cities in the world, but the vast country districts are almost totally undeveloped," says "Cousin Fred."

"Crude, almost primitive, living conditions prevail among the South American rural peoples, and it is almost impossible to negotiate the roads, once you leave the cities, there being practically no highway development in that country in the rural sections," according to Mr. Honser's reports.

"However, since Henry Ford is planning to erect a Ford factory in Buenos Aires, this condition may be expected to be remedied when 'Lizze' has blazed the way for heavier cars, many of which made in the United States may now be seen upon South American city streets.

South America is a country of great commercial possibilities, thinks Mr. Honser, and he believes Atlanta business men might profitably look that way for a splendid export trade.

"Cousin Fred" writes that he is well and having a good time. He says he has met many new American travelers in the southern continent.

Piles Cured WITHOUT SURGERY

An instructive book has been published by Dr. T. W. Hughes, the noted rectal specialist of Atlanta. This book tells how piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, cauterizers, "hot" iron, or any other cutting or burning method without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. This book is free to persons afflicted with piles. Examination and consultation free.
